

The Three Little Pigs

HUT was asked by Alison Royce of Sprout Arts and Storystream if they would like to take part in the 'Big Draw' and work with children at Ronald Ross Primary School to re-tell the story of the Three Little Pigs.

HUT asked the children to brainstorm, design, discuss and review ideas for recreating the House of Straw, the House of Sticks and the House of Bricks - much in the same way a traditional architecture project is run.

The children decided upon the materials to collect and proceeded to construct the houses over two consecutive days to form key elements of the exhibition.

All members of HUT were involved in the construction of the houses; assisting, guiding and encouraging the children's creativity.

HUT were greatly impressed by the children's enthusiasm, innovation and ability to 'think outside the box' in order to develop and realise their design ideas.

Working with the children and Sprout Arts was thoroughly enjoyable and highly rewarding for the practice. Enabling the children to design and more importantly realise their ideas was exciting for both the children and the volunteers involved.

Hopefully the children will have experienced a taste of a profession that they may not have been aware of. The experience enabled them to express their creative flare and innovation and develop their problem solving skills in order to realise their visions.
